EUROPEAN FIXED INCOME

INVESTMENT POLICY

The fund will invest at least two thirds of its total NAV in fixed income and debt securities Euro denominated issued or guaranteed by governments, corporate issuers, supranational entities having their registered office in Europe.

PORTFOLIO COMMENTARY

The disconnection between the real economy (which continues to improve) and the financial economy (which continues to deteriorate) has never been so wide. June has been a very poor month for risk appetite as concerns about European peripheral crises broadened into worries about the US recovery and policy tightening in the Emerging economies. Stock markets declines were enough to more than offset the rebounds that occurred during the first part of the year, while core Government bonds were the winner, with the German two year bund yield that reached its lowest level ever. Furthermore, in the euro area the approaching maturity of one-year refinancing transaction by the ECB (442 billion euros in late June 2010) has added to market jitters.

Our approach is to take small steps into corporate bonds reducing government bond positions which we think are very expensive, with the confidence that the path to stabilisation will be achieved. In our opinion normalising interest rates and heavy issuances will likely send government bond yields higher (prices down) in the remaining part of 2010.

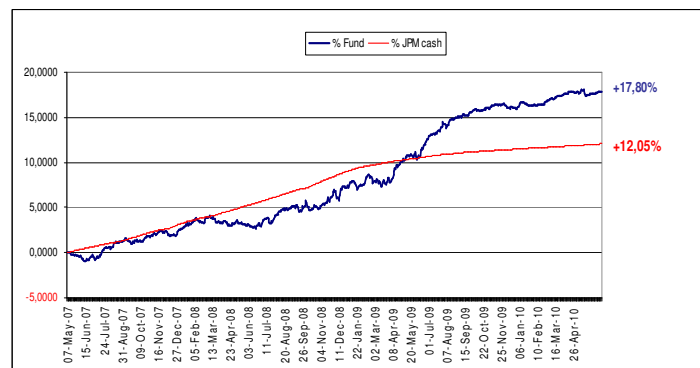

For these reasons, even during June 2010 Leonardo European Bond Opportunities has kept a very low duration (less than 2 years) and has kept a very high portion of the portfolio invested in non-government bonds since they offer an interesting yield spread compared to treasuries (at the end of June around 50% of the NAV was invested in non-government bonds)
